The Union exists to represent all 19,000 of our members - every City student. We’re run by students, for students, and provide support, representation, advice and activities throughout the good times and the tough times.

We’re governed by a board of 10 Trustees, who work alongside our student Officers, small staff team, and hundreds of student volunteers (that’s you) to run a thriving and active students’ union in the heart of London.

About Us

With a rich history spanning over 100 years, City, University of London Students’ Union is the primary organisation representing the views of over 19,000 students at City, University of London to the institution and beyond.

With three Full-Time Student Officers, a small team of permanent staff and the involvement of student volunteers, the Union is at the heart of activity on campus. We deliver a range of services and support for our members, from independent academic advice to supporting our Programme Reps to make change on their course, to promoting the employability and development of students through our Student Activities department.

The Union also runs a Shop which sells a range of products, including ethically sourced University branding clothing, merchandise, confectionary and stationary.
Union Advice

Union Advice is the academic advice service provided by City Students’ Union. We offer free, confidential, independent and impartial academic advice to City students on issues such as appeals, extenuating circumstances, academic misconduct, disciplinary matters, complaints and fitness to practise. Our remit also extends to advising students of their rights and responsibilities at University.

Our Volunteer Programme

In its second consecutive year the Union Advice Volunteer Programme is a really exciting project which seeks to give opportunities to, and develop students in a professional environment. The Programme creates space for students to learn and build experience in a number of areas which will be useful to them in their future career. This particular role is ideal for post-graduate Law students, however other applications will be considered.

Our volunteers are at the heart of the Union Advice Service and whilst we seek to grow students through training and development we could not deliver such a high-quality service without them.

As part of our Programme all volunteer Advise Caseworkers receive full training to ensure they have the skills needed to help students deal with their issues. They are supported and supervised as they begin to give advice and will gain feedback for development over the year.

Advice Caseworkers do all or some of this:

- Find out key points of a student’s problem;
- Find out what the problem is and help them to understand self-help information so they can act for themselves;
- Help students fill out relevant forms or write statements in order to support their case;
- Develop an understanding of University regulations and procedures in order to practically apply them to day to day work;
- Maintain accurate case notes of interactions using our Case Management System;
- Assist the Union Advice team to carry out other duties to ensure visibility of the service across the University.

This role is an excellent addition to legal training, providing an opportunity to provide advice to clients.

Further information regarding volunteering with the Union can be found in our Volunteer Policy.
